PROJECTS

Pill Blister Filling Process
Python Script Developer   Feb 2021 - Feb 2021
I successfully engineered a Python script utilizing OpenCV to meticulously inspect and assess the pill blister packaging, ensuring accurate pill count and proper filling. This automated quality control process enabled efficient decision-making, allowing for the seamless processing of correctly filled blisters while identifying and eliminating faulty ones. My innovative solution contributed to enhanced quality assurance in pharmaceutical packaging.

Breast Cancer Early Knowledge
Full-Stack Developer   Jul 2020 - Dec 2020
For my university's final year project, I developed 'Breast Cancer Early Knowledge' using ASP.NET Core. This comprehensive system featured a robust API, a user-friendly front-end interface, and a secure SQL Server database. The project aimed to empower early detection of breast cancer, with a question tree system inspired by a reputable medical institute's online resources, showcasing my dedication to leveraging technology for critical healthcare advancements.
